DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Drawings

2. Replacement drawings, replacing Figures 1 and 2, were received on August 13, 2004. These drawings are acceptable.

Claim Interpretation

3. As drafted claim 1 encompasses the embodiment wherein the application of the DC current and performing the heat treatment occur simultaneously.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Art Unit: 1742

5. Claims 1 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Emo et al. (Emo, US Patent No. 7,023,645).

Emo teaches a method comprising applying a electric current to a write head thereby causing the heating and thermal expansion of the write head (column 5, lines 26 to 35). The thermal expansion taught by Emo is considered to be encompassed by the thermal deformation recited in the last line of claim 1. Emo also discloses that the electric current used to heat the head is provided as a DC current (column 7, line 61 to column 8) as recited in applicants' claims. Emo teaches that the head to be treated can be a magneto-resistance head (for example, see column 2, lines 56 to 58 and column 9, lines 21 to 23). Thus, Emo teaches a process comprising applying a DC current to a magneto-resistance head, which heats the head and causes a thermal expansion or thermal deformation of the head. As drafted the claims encompass Emo's process.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claims 2 to 5 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

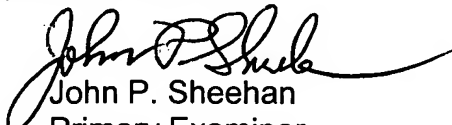

7. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: None of the references alone or in combination teach or suggest a method as recited in claim 1 wherein the heat treatment is performed by causing the element portion to collide with the surface of a bump disc.
